Mount Kailash & Man Sarovar Pilgrimage

Mount Kailash and Lake Man Sarovar are sacred sites for various religions, including Hinduism, Buddhism, Jainism, and Bon. The mountain, located in the western region of Tibet, is revered as the abode of Lord Shiva by Hindus and the center of the universe by Tibetan Buddhists. The Kora or Parikrama, a 52-kilometer trek, is believed to cleanse the soul and liberate one from the cycle of birth and rebirth. The most sacred day for the pilgrimage is during the full moon of the month of Vaisakha (April-May), when cosmic energies are at their peak.

Lower Man Sarovar, one of the highest freshwater lakes in the world, is believed to have been created by Lord Brahma for purification and worship. The crystal-clear waters of the lake are considered sacred, and pilgrims bathe in it to wash away sins and grant spiritual merit. Buddhists associate the lake with the legendary Anavatapta and provide spiritual clarity.
